The Ring.

Protection of the redlight district from the grand jury and its continuation in the center of the business district, contrary to law.

Encouragement of race track garabling across the river and the accompanying room gambling in hotels and rooming bouses without police interference, Manager Fogg in closing the season at the Ei Paso theater, was fortunate in being able to offer The Siren as the attraction. It is like a good descent after dinner; it will leave the proper taste in the mouth. The Siren is one of the best shows of the season, if not the best shows of the season, if not the best Many declare it is the best thing they have seen this year. As a fitting close to a season that has brought many splendid attractions as well as a number of mediocre caliber. The Siren is all that could be desired as a finale.

Donald Brina, the man who made the "Merry Widow" waltz the talk of the conlinent, plays the leading role in "The Siren," and he is surrounded by a real metropolitan cast. The costumes are claberate and new, the peoplemen and women—are a good tooking lot and, best of all, the volces are musical, and the music is also musical.

There is considerable comedy and much clever dancing. Will West offers many a laugh in the "low comedy" role of a horse doctor, and gets off an operatic burlesque in the last act that is a scream.

of a horse doctor, and gets off an operatic burlesque in the last act that is a scream.

Mr. Brian's dancing is very dainty and his acting is all that could be expected of a young marquis doing society and dedging the police, with a band of female strens in police service, on his trail, trying to get a specimen of his handwriting, to convict him of penning verses ridiculing his emperor, Of all the strens, Miss Carroll McComas, who by the way is the daughter of a Los Angeles jadge, is the most alluring, both to the audience and to the young marquis, and this is saying a good deal, for they are a bunch of real allurers. She is a very charming, dainty little bit of femininity, and she dances, sings and whistles just as daintily as she is expected to do when she is first introduced.

Miss Ethel Cadman, as the wife of the minister of police, is also very charming, and is decidedly the best singer in the company. She has a voice that is full of music and a smile that wins all the men in the cast except the hero, whom she is most anxious about; lust like real life.

The play is in four acts and is really musical. There is nothing trashy, or ragtimely laif, but the vines are snappy and whistley just the same. It is a real music with a real snap. It is called "a musical play" but reminds one much of "Robin Hood," Naughty Marietta, and light operas of that type. Harry B. Smith pur the show into English. The music is by Lee Fall, and it is evidence chough to convict him of beings a sunched if he water company.
